DISPOSAL OF SEWAGE

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS HOLDS CONFERENCE TO DISCUSS ADOPTION OF ORDINANCE

For some time past the Board of Supervisors of Los Angeles county has had under consideration the matter of the proposed adoption of an ordinance regulating the disposal of sewage of the various cities in the county. At a meeting of the Board on Dec. 20 it was decided to hold a conference for further discussion and consideration of this subject. This conference was held Jan. 12, and was attended by representatives from every one of the principal cities of the county. The State Board of Health and the State Department of Engineering also sent representatives to take part in the conference.

Mr. T. W. Watson, city manager of Glendale, who was present as representative of the City of Glendale, said to a representative of The Glendale Evening News: "I was glad I was able to attend the meeting with the Board of Supervisors. It was held in the office of the Supervisors in Los Angeles at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. Nearly every important city in the county was represented. After a long consideration of the subject of sewage disposal, it was practically agreed that any system that might be installed must make provision for handling the sewage of all the cities of the county. It was pointed out that the cities are rapidly growing closer together and must be considered as a whole.

"After the subject had been carefully considered with a unanimity of sentiment that was highly gratifying the Board of Supervisors appointed a committee of sanitary engineers to study the subject, prepare plans for a system of trunk lines and reduction plants and to report again to the Board.

Mr. Campbell, attorney for the State Board of Health, who appeared at the meeting as the representative of that body, expressed himself as satisfied with the discussion and with the general sentiment of the cities. He stated also that he might assure the representatives that whatever plan might be formulated by the Board of Supervisors would meet with the hearty co-operation and support of the State Board of Health.

"Dr Mabry, of Tropico, who was present, gave a very illuminating address on the subject of a general system of sewage for the whole county, contemplating even the taking in of districts outside the county. This was well received. The whole subject will now be thoroughly thrashed out by the engineers, who will doubtless prepare a thorough plan for handling the sewage.

"The cities are beginning to be afraid of the congested conditions that prevail in so many districts. They know that these conditions are going to become more emphasized as time goes on and that many troubles may arise out of them. Therefore they are anxious to have a comprehensive plan that will take them all in and make it possible for every city to have a proper sewage system. Practical unanimity prevailed throughout the meeting and was hailed by all present as a good augury of success."

PASADENA BOY DIES IN EAST

Regarded as one of the most remarkable students ever enrolled at Pasadena High School and later winning the same distinction at Hamilton college, Allen Groves of Altadena, lived less than a year after completing his education and taking up his life work. News of the young man's death at Washington, D. C., was received yesterday by friends in Altadena. Death was caused by heart failure accompanying an incipient attack of pneumonia. Indirectly death is believed to be due to the advice of college associates, who three years ago warned the young student that he should devote less time to study and more to physical exercise. Following this advice with the same excessive enthusiasm which he put in all his work, Mr. Groves entered the Hamilton college track squad and before he was in condition for the work overtaxed himself in sprinting. Illness followed and his heart has since been known to be weak.

ATTACKS IN THE DARK

W. F. TOWER SUGGESTS PLAN FOR DEALING WITH ANONYMOUS ASSAILANTS OF OFFICIALS

Editor Glendale Evening News:

No doubt the election laws of California compare favorably with those of other States; but they are undoubtedly lacking in one respect. The election laws of New Jersey, my former home, contain a provision which makes it unlawful, and subjects the offender to fine and imprisonment, for anyone to print and circulate a campaign circular or political document without the name of the author or other responsible party being attached.

This is a very wise provision. In any campaign, especially in a small community, there are always to be found parties devoid of courage or character and sometimes of both, who are desirous of misleading voters on public questions. Those individuals, being unscrupulous, are also eager to stab faithful officials provided they can do so in the dark. They do not dare to come into the open.

In consequence of the wise provision in the New Jersey laws anonymous lovers of darkness have in large measure been eliminated in that State. On the other hand the honest critic who may differ from the officials suffers no abridgement of his rights. He is not afraid and has no reason to act in the dark, his deeds not being evil. An honorable political controversialist in New Jersey signs his inquiries or his criticism.

While speaking of civic matters I would also like to inquire if the public ought not to consider whether the granting of a 50-year franchise to a public corporation is a wise act. In the more progressive cities of the country the advisability of municipal control of public utilities is being seriously investigated and it has been partly introduced in Glendale, with sound reasons for its adoption and continuance. Fifty years is a long time to give away the right to use public streets and more than one community has regretted the fact that hasty action on the part of a council has bound them for such a long period of time.

W. F. TOWER.

WONDERFUL RESULTS

The reports presented at the annual dinner given by the First Congregational Church on Wednesday evening in their banquet hall, showed the decided and substantial progress made in all departments, and a material increase in enrollment of the Sunday School and church membership. The financial report showed all obligations, including benevolent endowments, paid in full, which is most creditable considering the general financial conditions prevailing.

Reports were read from the Church proper, Sunday School, Christian Endeavor, Junior Endeavor, Woman's Missionary Society, Woman's Auxiliary, Brotherhood and Church Trustees.

The church claims four committees, namely, Financial, Social, Religious Work and Benevolent.

The Mr. and Mrs. Willisford were given a most hearty and enthusiastic vote of appreciation for the splendid services given as a pastor and helpmate, to this church, and all present pledged their loyal support for the future undertakings.

In closing Mr. Willisford thanked members singly and collectively for the earnest and appreciative efforts extended in furthering the success and growth of his, as pastor, and their church.

ALL IN READINESS

DRESS REHEARSAL OF "A BACHELOR'S ROMANCE" GOES OFF WELL

"A Bachelor's Romance," to be given tonight and Friday evening under the auspices of the Masonic bodies of Glendale, at the Palace Grand Theatre, held its final rehearsal last night. The entire performance went off with a "Bang." Everybody, principals and the support cast, are up to the letter, promising two excellent performances.

Chas. L. Peckham is particularly good in his role as "Literary critic" and guardian of Sylvia Somers, charmingly played by Gladys Justema. Dwight Stephenson as Gerold Holmes, a pleasure-loving man of the world, is cleverly enacted, while Owen Rhodes as David's secretary and confidential man makes the most of a most pleasing part.

Frank Littell, cast as Harold Reynolds, who is burdened with an overly amount of conceit since becoming successful as a magazine writer, couldn't be more sincerely done than in the way Littell handles the part. James Henry Ilse as Mr. Mulberry is doubly good and it isn't so much what he says, as the way he "says it." Owen Emery's "Archibald Lytton Savage," a modern literary man, is done with ease and sincerity, while Stanley Gorman as James the butler deserves creditable mention.

"Helen Le Grand, David's sister," by Mrs. Harry Neil, Jr., proves herself quite the attractive widow she is impersonating, and Rae Davis' "A maiden lady with a sharp tongue" is emphatic. Alma Turner as Harriet Leicester is the up-to-date type of her role as a society girl.

PREPARE FOR GRAND CONCLAVE

An event of great interest to all citizens of Southern California is the coming meeting in Los Angeles, June 17 to 23, next, of one of the most important conventions held in the United States, namely, the 33rd Triennial Conclave of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the United States. Approximately one hundred trains will bear the distinguished visitors to Southern California, for the Triennial Conclave of Knights Templar is the one important convention which will be held on the Pacific Coast during 1916.

PICTURES OF PAST

J. H. BRALY PRESENTS STORY OF HIS LIFE TO GLENDALE LIBRARY

One of the interesting books recently acquired by the Glendale Public library is "Memory Pictures," an autobiography by John Hyde Braly, a local resident, who played quite a large part in the early days of the settlement of California by Americans. This volume, which is interestingly illustrated, was intended for private circulation only and is more of a family affair than a public offering. It contains, nevertheless, a great deal that is of interest to the public and affords a few pictures of life in the pioneer days of the State that cannot fail to be of value.

Born of a hardy Scotch-Irish stock, on the banks of the Merrimac in Missouri, Mr. Braly had the usual experiences of those early days back in 1835. He gives many details of that early life, not the least interesting of which is his encouter when ten years of age with a mountain lion. His parents moved to California in 1847, in company with other settlers, and experienced the usual adventures and mishaps of the long overland trail—adventures with buffalo and Indians, troubles with their ox-train, difficult river passages, loss of some of the company by drowning, finally reaching the Columbia river and arriving in Portland in December, 1847.

Thence the party went southward through Oregon. Young Braly and others took to freighting and made much money in those early days among the mining camps. Settling in the Santa Clara valley in 1850 the Bralys began the customary life of the frontier. Farming flourished with them and young Braly went to Lebanon, Mo., where he entered Cumberland university. On his return to California he was made president of Sonoma College and married.

From that time forward the story interestingly details the struggle to get on. Things prospered with the young couple. Their family grew up. Their farming by hard work succeeded. Then Mr. Braly took up banking in Fresno in 1884, where he fought grasshoppers and raised raisins. He went to San Diego in the boom days of 1877 and after having invested quite a large sum of money in property there, sold out and came to Los Angeles in 1891. He and others were the founders of the Southern California Savings Bank, in that city. He built the 12-story Braly building and after seventeen years of hard and profitable work retired from that business. The remainder of the book gives a brief account of travels in the Far East and in Europe and an appendix of family events and portraits.

Mr. Braly lived close to the early life of the State and his stories of the vicissitudes of the stirring days of '49 are graphic. His simple religion brought him safely through all the temptations of that rough and ready time and the teachings of his parents never failed him. This volume will well repay perusement. It can be seen at the public library, though not intended for common circulation. The illustrations are of interest, including early pictures of the author and his wife. Pictures of events on the old ranches, crossing the plains, a bull fight and other picturesque incidents of the early days.

LESSON OF THE BOND ELECTION

According to some of the authorities on municipal peculiarities in Glendale is will take two big fires and a flood to convince a majority of the property owners that it is their duty to get out and vote for bonds for sufficient fire equipment and flood protection. There was no interest taken in the bond election by nearly three-fourths of the voters in the city. This is to be regretted. An intelligent body of voters like those of Glendale is making a mistake in permitting important civic decisions to be settled by the vote of a minority.

It was a foregone conclusion that the Wash improvement bonds would not carry. There is a considerable public sentiment against the adding to the burdens of the taxpayers in these times of depression and lack of money. There also seems to be a tendency to resist the policy of piling up bonded debts on municipalities. Numbers of property owners point to the burdens they are already carrying and refuse to have others added to them.

However these things may be there is little doubt, as was said in these columns before the election, that the matter was in the people's hands to decide as they might choose. They have decided that Glendale can take the risk of flood damage and fire loss with its present fire equipment and its present flood defense. If at any future time property owners find themselves confronted with serious flood loss they can have the satisfaction of knowing that they chose to have it so. The right to choose in this manner is undoubtedly theirs just as the bearing whatever loss may be incurred is theirs also.

The feature of the election that is most to be regretted is that so large a body of citizens abstained from voting. The right to vote has been won with great loss of life and through many centuries. The descendants of the men who battled for those rights apparently esteem them of less importance that did their forefathers, when they are willing to leave them in the hands of an insignificant minority.

While it is undoubtedly the case that the citizens of Glendale handled the election as they pleased it is equally certain that they had made up their minds to do so weeks before the election came off. Indeed, this result was discounted long ago by everyone who understood the situation. Thus it is also patent that no last minute influence that was brought to bear on the voters had the slightest effect on the vote. There is no victory in it for any party and no defeat for any party.

STORY OF THE CENSUS

Less than a decade after the American colonies had achieved their independence and within a year from the date of the inauguration of President Washington and the assembling of the First Congress of the United States, there was begun the first enumeration of the population of this country. This has been renewed every ten years since that time. By the courtesy of Congressman Randall, a little booklet entitled "The Story of the Census" has been sent to The Glendale Evening News. This booklet contains the tale of the growth of the whole system of gathering the vital statistics of the United States and is extremely interesting.

The first Census was taken in 1790, related solely to population, and was limited in scope. Since then from time to time the field has been enlarged until it now embraces detailed inquiries along sixteen distinct lines, made every ten, five, and two years and also annually and semi-annually as regards some statistics. Besides all this special inquiries are sometimes ordered by the president or by congress.

At the time of the first census there were seventeen United States marshals and the work of enumeration was performed by them and 650 marshals' assistants. It took eighteen months to collect all the returns. These were turned over to the president and by him to the secretary of state, who transmitted them to the printer. This first census forms a book of 56 octavo pages. There are only a few copies of it in existence, two are in the Census bureau and one in the Library of Congress.

That was in 1790. Compare that 56-page octavo with the 100 or more quarto (12x9-inch) volumes, having an aggregate of 40,000 pages, which constitute the most recent census, that of 1910. That measures the enormous development of the United States in those years. In that early age New York, now the second city in the world, had 32,000 inhabitants, and Philadelphia was the capital. The total area of the United States at that time was 825,000 square miles, or about one-fourth of its present area, but the settled area was only 240,000 square miles. The western boundary was the Mississippi river. Western New York was a wilderness. The territory west of the Alleghenies was unsettled and scarcely explored. Roads were poor and almost impassable in places and bridges were unknown. Mail service was irregular, expensive and uncertain.

Down through the decades that have occurred since 1790 the taking of the census gradually became a matter of considerable complication. More and more statistics were called for; until in 1910 the thirteenth census showed of so much importance that it was handled by what had become in 1902 a permanent Census bureau. The Thirteenth Census covered the subjects of population (including occupations), agriculture, manufacture, mines and quarries, and its geographic scope comprised continental United States, Alaska, Hawaii and Porto Rico. The population reports filled four quarto volumes.

Seventy thousand two hundred and eighty-six enumerators were required to gather the statistics. The statistics in cities were gathered in fifteen days. The statistics in country districts, including agricultural statistics, were gathered in thirty days.

If anyone should ask, "What is the use of all this collection of data?" it may be said that it is true of every social change, whether of progress or decline, that the steps are imperceptible to the unaided vision of those who as legislators and administrators, in the face of existing conditions of infinite complexity in their origin and interdependence, mould public policy. To determine the direction and extent of these changes requires the survey of a long period of time. It demands accurate measurements and details of social phenomena. The proper function of the census is to assemble these data and so present them as to enlarge the scope and power of vision of those who may be directing the trend of social forces. In the records of the census the growth of a nation is epitomized and in its current work the imperceptible changes which are taking place are accurately determined.

Visited by Short Change Artist

La Canada and vicinity was visited during the past week by a short change worker. At Upson's store in North Pasadena, it is reported, he successfully worked his game. Likewise at the Metcalf store and postoffice, he secured a dollar. At Stults' store he was refused change for the twenty dollar gold piece and he was again given the cold shoulder at the La Crescenta store.

The description of the stranger is as follows: Tall, broad build, well up in years; well dressed with stiff brimmed hat; uses a new olive green runabout with 1916 license to get around in.

His game is an old one but worked on a petty scale. He buys a few cents worth of goods and presents a twenty dollar gold piece for change. He proceeds to act suspicious and frightens the storekeeper. In taking his change, he hides a dollar or two and claims his change is incorrect. The storekeeper naturally proposes that the goods and change be returned and the stranger receives his twenty dollar gold piece and departs with it and the hidden change. Only by working the game a large number of times, the stranger makes a fairly profitable day's wage.

FOR THEIR SON

Auspicious in the social happenings of the week was the delightful dancing party given Wednesday evening by Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Burk of 525 N. Central avenue, in honor of their son Richard, in celebration of his 18th birthday. The affair was given in the ballroom of Mrs. Keller's school for dancing, on South Brand boulevard, and this talented person had full charge of arrangements.

Without doors and within, in the bright lights of Japanese lanterns which peeped from among the eucalyptus boughs, which formed the chief decorative motif.

"Favor" dance numbers prevailed and many clever gifts were claimed. Receiving with the young host were his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Burk, and Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Martin. Bidden for dancing and to enjoy a slice of the huge birthday cake bearing eighteen lighted candles were the Misses Mary Jane Evans, Katherine Lord, Esther Sinclair, Dorothy Hobbs, Bebe Daniels, Eloise Seaman, Cecelia Lyons, Vera Bayard, Grace Beach, Maud and Rebecca Gregg, Lillian Leppleman and Rachel McClure, the Messrs. Edward M. Seay, Wayne Smith Harry Glazier, Louis Coole, Montgomery Coole, Steve Haviland, James Shea, Owen Dibbern, J. T. Beach, I. S. Brown, Harwood Collins, Percy McIntyre, H. Davy, H. Dailey, Robert Burk and the honored host for the evening, Richard Burk.

VALLEY VIEW

Harry Kendall and wife and two children of Hollywood came over last Sunday to visit the family of C. H. Carmack, 755 Central avenue. The party started out soon after noon for an auto ride, all but Floyd Carmack and Maurice Kendall, lads of about 10 years of age, who were left at home to amuse themselves. They were considered such steady boys that the parents had no fears at leaving them. But they belied their reputation, as old stage horses, this time, for hardly had the party gotten out of sight till they hunted up a sharp axe and began to play forest ranger. They took turns in chopping at a by Floyd sent the keen blade into Maurice's right hand, almost severing the third and little fingers. Neighbors cared for the wounded boy till the parents returned. The next day he was taken to a hospital and the third finger was taken off. It is hoped to save the other finger.

Walter Deacon arrived recently from Kansas City, Mo., where he had been working for the government. He is staying for a few days with his aunt, Mrs. Cora Bradley, 1617 Oak, while doing some telephone line work. He will resume his work as forest ranger in the Santa Ana canyon. Walter's mother, Mrs. Cora Deacon, arrived a few days later from Kansas City, where she had been for a year or more with her daughter. She is in very poor health but has improved since reaching California.

We omitted from last week's items mention of the marriage of Mr. Ed Jennings of Long Beach to Miss Gertrude Moffatt of 1510 Hawthorne, which took place at the Holy Family church in this city. Rev. J. S. O'Neill officiated. The young couple have gone to housekeeping at 640 East 6th street, Long Beach.

LITTLELANDS

Mr. Shoemaker of Sunset boulevard was a business visitor to Los Angeles last Saturday, returning in the afternoon.

Dr. Rebecca White of El Centro and Monte Vista boulevard, spent several days at the Hollywood apartments, Los Angeles, last week.

The large stage that runs to Los Angeles from Littlelands was out of commission a short time on last Monday because of tire trouble, which occurred near Burbank. The chauffeur had to phone to Sunland for the extra stage to bring the passengers through.

The Garden committee meets next Tuesday afternoon at the Club house at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. Darlington has charge of the program. All are cordially invited.

Miss Mary Sheehan of Warehousepoint, Conn, who visited in the valley last summer at the home of her uncle, P. J. Blake, on Cedar street, is a new subscriber of the Progress for the coming year.

Judge Craig of the Superior Court of Los Angeles County has an eye on the Monte Vista valley. He thinks it the most beautiful valley in Southern California and is thinking of establishing a home somewhere between La Crescenta and Sunland, when he gets ready to retire from his professional duties.

Home Croft Round Table

After a number of announcements last Friday evening the moderator spoke of a letter he had received from an old friend, who told of the retirement of two-thirds of the workmen of a factory in Mr. Ashley's old home town in New England. The men were retired because they are no longer young. It is a sad fact to which many in Southern California can testify, that there seems to be a decided reluctance to employing men after they have reached middle age, unless they are experts along some line. This is only another case among myriads which serves to show the necessity of establishing independent homes—homes on small or large tracts where the inmates may produce that which is necessary for the maintenance of the family.

Mr. Maxwell was present at the Home Croft meeting, after an absence of several weeks. His talk turned upon the homely but necessary old spud. Mr. Maxwell thinks it can be successfully demonstrated that potatoes can be raised here in as great a quantity to the acre and as good quality as in other localities. Every family ought to produce all they need for their own use. By studying the ground and planning judiciously efforts along this line will be crowned with abundant success.

East El Centro avenue is undergoing considerable repairs across the wash beyond Miss Benedict's place. This is a much needed work and is being done by the county.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Catt have both been on the sick list recently. Mr. Catt was absent from the store for two days.

Mr. Steen of Manzenita Drive purchased a new Ford roadster last Tuesday.

Mr. George Osborne of the firm of Osborne and Foutsch is confined to his home on Sunset boulevard, ill with the grippe.

Mr. W. L. Catt of Glendale spent a few days this week visiting his son Jack.

Mrs. Warren of Sunset boulevard, who has been quite ill for a number of days, is slowly recovering.

Death of Mrs. Lamson, Sr.

Mrs. Annie Lamson, mother of our esteemed townsman, J. W. Lamson, passed quietly away last Tuesday evening, near 8 o'clock. She had been feeble for a long time and death was not unexpected. The immediate cause of her demise was pneumonia. Mrs. Lamson was born in New Orleans, La., 71 years ago last October. She is survived by three children, one son in Puerto Rico, a daughter living in the northern part of the state and J. W. Lamson, who resides on Greely avenue. Her husband and one son preceded her in death. The funeral occurred Wednesday and interment was made in Burbank cemetery.

P. J. Blake, one of the directors of the Littlelands store, has tendered his resignation to the board.

Mr. Walter S. Thayer, until recently a resident of Boston, Mass., is expected to visit with his brother, Mr. Charles Thayer, of Monte Vista boulevard and Los Angeles street. He is now at his ranch in Fresno. This will be a great reunion as the brothers have not seen each other for 33 years.

Town Meeting

At the town meeting Tuesday night, some amusement was caused by, and a good deal of interest shown in the discussion pertaining to the planting of potatoes in the dark of the moon. No one seems to be able so far to account on scientific principles for the fact that a better crop is obtained by planting in the dark rather than in the light of the moon, yet a number present asserted that in trying the matter out, the results sustain the theory, and not only potatoes but all vegetables growing under ground do better planted in the dark of the moon and those growing on top of the ground give better results if planted in the light of the moon, so at least many experienced gardeners affirm.

There was also some discussion on the subject of the divining rod used in locating water underground. It was announced at town meeting that the calendula seed purchased by the Herbal club could be obtained in small lots for cost at the post office store. Mr. Ashley has the matter in charge.
